

I just found out about this issue. Once again the FCC is being used to try to silence broadcasters- in this case satellite radio. All broadcasting should undergo the censorship of the market. That is- if people do not wish to listen, watch or read- that company will go out of business. If there are specifically objectional materials i.e. obscenity- this should be defined clearly and then removed from the media. Otherwise it should be left alone. Please let satellite radio sink or swim on its own. Thank you- Gary Cowen
